

Nathan Maestracci (France) studied a Master in Physics at Université de Lorraine. He started his PhD in our group in 2025, on modelling plasma-based CO_2 and CH_4 conversion to syngas, including the effect of higher hydrocarbons from Fischer-Tropsch synthesis recycling, in a project on electrified production of sustainable aviation fuels.