Estimating forest carbon uptake with machine learning and in-situ measurements

- Plants exert stomatal control in response to environmental conditions, altering their carbon uptake

- Needle-level measurements of photosynthetic parameters

- Use photosynthetic parameters to constrain machine learning and mechanistic model