

Emouna – Leadership in an interfaith context.

Strengthen your leadership skills in a diverse society!

Do you work in an environment where worldview diversity plays an important role?

Do you want to strengthen your leadership qualities? Are you interested in how people can work well together in a diverse environment while maintaining their own identity? Then Emouna – Leadership in an interworldview context – is really something for you!

What is Emouna?

Emouna is a unique leadership program of fifteen Wednesdays for people who have to deal with worldview diversity in their professional activities. Keywords here are interfaith dialogue, critical reflection, and social engagement.

Who is Emouna for?

The program focuses on:

1. Religious leaders (imams, pandits, pastors, rabbis)
2. Chaplains/consultants and teachers
3. Professionals in settings with religious diversity, such as healthcare facilities, police, education, ministries, and businesses
4. Anyone who wants to build bridges between different traditions and understand diverse perspectives

What does Emouna offer?

Each course day offers high-quality lectures and interactive group work. Education is provided by religious leaders and academics, as well as politicians and professionals from the public and private sectors. This interaction between philosophy of life, academia and society creates a unique learning environment.

The course covers topics such as Religion, Government and Law, Social Engagement, Communication and Social Networking, Interpretation of Sacred Texts, Leadership and Management, Professional Ethics.
