Introduction

The final activity of the Erasmus+ KA2 project "Citylab – Engaging students with sustainable cities in Latin America" was the conference "PBL for Sustainable Cities" hosted by Universidad del Rosario in Bogota from the 19th until the 21st of September 2018.

The Citylab conference was held to disseminate insights and stimulate academic discussion on Problem Based Learning methods. A broad range of researchers and teachers from both European and Latin American higher education institutions participated to share their ideas and experiences on PBL. At the same time the goal was to expose the work of the students involved in the CITYLAB modules. Students got selected to take part in the student competition and exposed their projects during a student fair. An international jury of academics and professionals selected a winning student team.

World Kashba

The goal of the World Kashba session is to discuss the PBL experiences and insights from Latin American universities, based on their developed Citylab modules. The aim is to discuss defined questions and share specific experience concerning the different topics. The discussions will be held in 8 smaller groups focusing on 4 themes (2 groups per theme). Each discussion will last up to one hour so every participant has time to discuss all themes through a free-flow of changing groups. Each discussion table will be directed by a moderator who will make sure all questions are addressed and every participant has the opportunity to contribute to the discussion. Selected students will act as rapporteurs during this session. They will take notes, summarize and present the conclusions on the final day of the conference, Friday the 21st of September.

Questions

THEME 1: TEACHING STRATEGIES

How were students coached during the module?

What was the balance between traditional lectures and group discussions?

How did you define the problem? Which barriers were experienced when defining a "good problem" suited for PBL?

How did you motivate students to take the lead in their own learning process?

What type of learning material did you provide / was provided?

How was the learning process of students structured?

THEME 2: EVALUATION

How did you organize feedback to students during the PBL modules?

How did you formulate the evaluation criteria for PBL modules?

How was the students' PBL learning process evaluated?

What information did you need on student performance to ensure an objective and fair evaluation?

What did you do to continuously evaluate whether students acquired the desired competences and knowledge through their learning process?

THEME 3: DESIGN AND IMPLEMENTATION STRATEGIES

Which barriers occurred at institutional level when implementing a PBL course? What did you do to overcome them?

How did you integrate PBL courses in the curriculum? What is the relation with other courses?

Which facilities were needed to allow a PBL course?

How can you upscale your PBL module to other curricula at your institution?

THEME 4: WORKING WITH EXTERNAL ACTORS AND REAL LIFE PROBLEMS

How did you involve external actors in your PBL module?

How was the interaction between local stakeholders and students supported?

How did you keep balance between the pedagogical goals of your PBL module and the expectations of external actors?

How did PBL contribute to a better understanding of real life problems/SDG's?

How were the Sustainable Development Goals addressed in your PBL module

Student fair

The CITYLAB Student fair was dedicated to disseminate and expose the work of the students which they have developed during the Citylab PBL Modules. The fair was open to a wide public of international academics, teachers, students, (local) stakeholders and practitioners in sustainable cities.

Each team presented two posters: one poster demonstrating the learning process of the project and one poster with the results of the project itself. During the fair, the jury passed by each of the student teams to ask questions to clarify different aspects of their project. At the end of the Student Fair the jury selected a winning team based on the evaluation criteria:

1. Learning process (PBL)
2. Interdisciplinary work
3. Collaboration with local stakeholders
4. Sustainable Development Goals

CAMPUS LEADERS	13	17 (EU+LA)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Institutional results Collaboration with external actors Interdisciplinary Benefits and improvement possibilities

Overall conclusions:

1. Citylab project accomplished the general and specific objectives foreseen in the initial proposal, in a successful way.
2. Number of modules, teachers, and students involved demonstrates the growing expectation to experiment on active learning methodologies in LA universities.
3. The local actors involvement demonstrate the interest to work with the academia. SDG's agenda opens a door for reinforcing initiatives.
4. Project management skills should be reinforced in teacher and students. It's a common necessity.
5. Interdisciplinary was achieved beyond expectations.
6. International cooperation mechanism were scarcely developed during the project. The EU and LA partners should consider further initiatives that could take advantage of the network, such as community of practice.

E-book & Special Issue

All the contributions to the Citylab conference are collected in an E-book. This document contains the abstracts of the research papers presented during the academic sessions as well as descriptions of all the developed Citylab modules and the projects of students who took part in the student competition.

Besides, a Special Issue will be published aiming to collect the best contributions presented at the Citylab Conference, while remaining open to the entire PBL research community, inviting articles that deal with teaching and research within a PBL environment related to sustainability and/or sustainable cities.

The call for papers is now open:

<https://journals.aau.dk/index.php/pbl>

Imported deadlines:

Jan. 15, 2019: Deadline full articles

April 1, 2019: Reviews sent to authors

June 1, 2019: Deadline for revised articles

August 1, 2019: Publication
